FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

Stocks Continue Dull and Heavy.

MONEY STILL STRINGENT

General Belief that the Loan Market Is Manipulated.

WALL STREET. FRIDAY, Nov. 7-6 P. M. } The stock market to-day has been comparatively quiet, and neither in the amount of transactions nor in the matter of fluctuations was there anything eserving of special notice. Money on call remained as tight as ever, and speculation succumbed to the pressure, pretty much as does the inoffensive citizen to the tap of Captain Williams' club. There was no more reason why the market should be clubbed by tight money than that the citizen should be clubbed by the police official, but it was so nevertheless. such everybody who asked for accommodation early in the day at the legal rates was received with a bat upon the head and sent away humiliated. When these mendicants penitently returned later When these mendicants penitonily returned later in the day and begged accommodation at \( \frac{1}{2} \) per cent and interest they were received like Prodigal Sons and accommodated with the best the market could afford. In a word, money was stringent for the best part of the day and only showed signs of easing up at the close, when the rate fell off to 7 per cent. As a matter of fact the real value of money on call leave has power yet exceeded 7 per cent. on call loans has never yet exceeded 7 per cent, and in most instances borrowers of prime credit, furnished with good securities, have supplied their wants at this rate. Weaker brokers, however, who were not gilt edged, either in the matter of credit or collateral, but appeared as borrowers with a sort of Dutch metal reputation, were made to pay a shave that ranged anywhere between 1-32 and 34 per cent. As there were more of the Dutch metal than of the gilt-edged borrowers wanting accommodation the price of money rose with the demand. While the fair and square, real and legitimate demand for capital warrants a full legal price for the use of money, it is clear that any rate beyond this is manufactured and artificial. That it has been made so by certain speculative cap italists and by certain brokers' banks is the belief of the street. The first have locked up money by the process of holding back certified checks, and the second have given an additional turn to the key by demanding rates that are simply not usurious be cause some intermediate loan broker is employed to make the transaction at seven per cent and "a com-What disposition is made of the commission nobody knows, but the general impression is that the bank officials do not suffer by its collection. The stringency in money has to a great extent influenced stock matters to-day. Variations in prices have been limited and business has been, comparatively speaking, dull. Much store is set upon the result of Secretary Sherman's bid for $10,000,000 six per cent bonds which is to be declared to-morrow. Opinions vary greatly as to the amount which will be offered and as to the price which Mr. Sherman will feel it proper to pay. The call is for six per cent bonds of which there are in round numbers 18,060,000 of the 1880's and 283,000,000 of 1881's. As these securities are mostly held by individuals for investment, by savings banks, insurance companies and trust companies, it is fair to presume that the holders will not part with them at a less price than will assure a reinvestment without loss in the four per cents, plus something of a profit on the transaction. As the Secretary is hardly likely to appear as a bull in governments by bidding much above the market we fear that the number of bonds offered at acceptable prices will fall below the amount anticipated. However, Mr. Sherman is to what is best to be done. Total sales at the Board to-day were 218,752 shares, against 238,253 yesterday. Following is an epitome here this afternoon in proprid persons, and will un-doubtedly consult the shining lights of finance as counsel for Mr. Davis.

Benjamin E. Doane, an ex-member of Congress and executor of the estate of Dr. James C. Ayres, of Boston, was called to the stand and testified to buying 5,215 shares of the cank's property at $29 per share. He testified that there was no collusion with Receiver Davis or any other person whatever.

William H. Morrell testified that he attended the sale of the bank's property in 1874 with a view to making purchases, but did not do so because he thought there was collusion between buyers and sellers; at the sale last April he bought 100 shares at $20 a share; he did not act as "a stool pigeon for Davis or any other person."

Mr. Parsons said that inasmuch as Mr. Charles L. Froat was present he should like to examine him in substantiation of his (Mr. Froat's) affidavit, Mr. Frost replied that he was not then prepared to take the witness stand. Mr. Parsons said:—"Mr. Frost doesn't dare to take the stand."

In an excited manner Mr. Frost sprang to his foot, leaned forward and shouted to Cownsellor Farsons:—"What did you say! What's that you said! I don't dare? I'll snow you what! dare do before I get through with this matter. Don't tell me, sir, I don't dare. I demand the protection of this honorable Court." (Laughter.)
